glanced off. The pistol's spool—better than you, old fellow; but Snawley's got it snugly, I fancy."

Harry, as though in a dream, accompanied his second to where his late antagonist lay. Dr. McIntyre had cut away the Captain's tightly-buttoned frock-coat, pushed aside the blood-stained shirt, and was busily occupied examining a wound just above the collar-bone. Murdoch looked on very compassedly. Tom Rattleworth, notwithstanding all his good-heartedness, did not look as though he were at all sorry; but Harry, to whom it all appeared like a dream, felt sick and stupefied.

There is something in the shedding of human blood, even that of an enemy, which makes it necessary to get used to the occupation, before a man can regard it with anything like tolerable equanimity. Men of the world perhaps would not like to confess as much—because that sort of humanity would be regarded as rather disgraceful than otherwise; but whether they confess it or not, they feel it. Why, there was Tom Firebrass, who would be ready enough upon occasion to invite his brother out before breakfast. Tom was seen once, with his coat off, pale and with tears in his eyes, helping to carry a poor wretch who had been run over by an omnibus to the hospital. Firebrass ought to have been proud of that act, which the recording angel doubtless wrote down with a smile; but he was not; he regarded the mention of it as an insult, and 'called out' one of his most intimate friends who told the story as a good joke at a dinner-table. What Mr. Murdoch felt when he saw his ancient comrade down, we do not pretend to know—there were no signs of emotion upon his iron face to give even a hint. What the doctor felt was what doctors usually feel; curiosity about the case in their hands. Men do not import sentiment into their business; except, perhaps, Jack Ketch, who shakes hands in token of amity with the criminal he is about to strangle. What Tom Rattleworth felt was that it served Snawley right; but Coverdale was stunned and borne down by the consciousness that probably he had killed a man. He did not reason about it—he did not think—he did not consider his own danger if Snawley really should die. It would be difficult to put the sensation he experienced into words. It was as though a weight had fallen upon him; the heaviness of which he could not estimate—a weight which numbed his consciousness and rendered him indistinct.

After a silence of a minute or two, which seemed to Harry an age, the doctor said as coolly as though he was busy about a piece of injured machinery, "I'm thinking y'd better get the carriage round and be getting him home."

"Is he dead?" asked Murdoch; and the question was justified by the complete insensibility of the wounded man; who neither stirred nor groaned, nor gave any signs of life.

THE LIABILITY OF STEAMBOAT PROPRIETORS AS COMMON CARRIERS.—Mr. B. F. Mudgett recently brought an action against the Bay State Steamboat Company, for the recovery of the value of a valise which was stolen from his state room, on board the Metropolis, while he was on his way to Boston. He left his state room temporarily in the evening, locking the door of the apartment and putting the key in his pocket. While he was absent the room was entered and his valise stolen. Defendants proved that the plaintiff was aware that there was a baggage-master on board the boat who received trunks and valises, and who gave checks for their safe delivery. Judge Stewart, before whom the case was tried, charged that the defendants were responsible, the plaintiff not being obliged to leave his valise with the baggage master, as it contained articles of wearing apparel only. Judgment was therefore given for the plaintiff.

The Northern reason for buying Southern products, and the Southern reason for buying Northern fabrics, is precisely the same as the British reason for buying French silks—because they can nowhere else get so cheaply. Whatever the South cannot get most cheaply at the North it gets elsewhere; the North does the like by the South. As to the Southerners importing goods through New York, they do it for the same reason as most retailers in Massachusetts, because New York happens to have the best assortment and the greatest facilities for transacting business.

This speaks the New York Times in a sensible article on the ridiculous talk at the South about having no further business intercourse with the North. Anything more nonsensical than such an idea can scarcely be conceived. We gave a small illustration of its inconsistency yesterday. Every newspaper editor who advocates takes care not to refuse Northern, Eastern and Western subscriptions or advertisements. He tells Southern young ladies that they ought to wear lincey dresses, but buys Northern clothing for himself, uses Northern pens to inculcate his lessons, Northern types and a Northern press to print them, and sends them by a mail of which the North pays for the larger proportion of the expense. One Southerner has justly enough remarked that, however his will might approve of non-intercourse, his whole body, inside and outside, objected to it.—N. Y. Com. Adv.

Death of Mr. Colburn.

Mr. Dana P. Colburn, the Principal of the State Normal School in Bristol, was killed very suddenly on Thursday afternoon, 16th inst.

The circumstances of his sad decease, we learn from a private letter to be as follows: It was the habit of Mr. C., to go out for a drive after the close of his school in the afternoon. On this occasion he went out alone in a sulky, and it is supposed that his horse took fright and he holding on to the reins, fell from the wagon over the wheel, and was probably—dragged some distance on the road before he was killed, his neck being dislocated, besides being frightfully mangled otherwise.

Every circumstance attending his death seems most fearful and mysterious. In one week from the day of his death, he was to have been married to a very lovely young lady residing in Bristol. At the moment the news was carried to her house, she was arrayed in her bridal dress and veil, which had just been brought home. The cards were ready to be issued, and nearly every arrangement was completed for what promised to be a very happy marriage.

His remains were taken to Providence on Saturday, at which place his funeral will take place.

Truly in the midst of life we are in death.

GENERAL NEWS.

THIRTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

FIRST SESSION.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15, SENATE.

Messrs. Davis, Collamer, Fitch, and Doolittle were named as the Committee under Mr. Mason's resolution to make investigation relative to the Harper's Ferry affair. Mr. Pugh submitted a resolution which, under the rule, lies over, instructing the Committee on Territories to inquire into the expediency of repealing so much of the act for the organization of the Territorial Governments of New Mexico and Utah as required all laws passed by those Territories to be submitted to Congress for approval or rejection. The Rev. Dr. Gurley was elected Chaplain, and the Senate adjourned till Monday next.

HOUSE.

Mr. Vallandigham of Ohio took the floor, and said that the man who indorsed Helper's book was not fit to be a Speaker or member of the House. He declared that he was not a Northern man—that he had no sympathy for the North. He was a United States man, with United States principles. He would give the South all that belonged to it—the Fugitive Slave law, the right to Slavery in the Territories, and whatever rights the Constitution confers. He declared himself against disunion, but he did not believe the Union could be maintained except through a united people, and by the immediate, total, unconditional destruction of what he called the "Sectional" and "Anti-Slavery Republican party." Mr. Pennington of N. J., in order that members might leave the Chamber while discussion was going on, moved that at 1 o'clock the House proceed to vote for Speaker three times, after which no vote should be taken. But it was not agreed to. Mr. Crawford of Ga. took the floor in defense of Slavery, and denied that the South had violated compromises, as charged by Mr. Hickman. He claimed that the first aggression of Missouri as a State, the restriction of Slavery in certain Territories—a privilege always enjoyed by slaveholders. He was proud of those Northern Democrats who had stood by the Constitution; but he would tell them they were powerless against the great Republican party. He said the South had no fear of Helper's book—that Slavery could not be disturbed by it. He asked why Mr. Beecher did not go to Virginia and preach his doctrines. Mr. Kilgore (Ind.) replied because the liberty of speech is denied at the South. Mr. Crawford added: "We not only deny liberty of speech, but personal liberty to such men—he would be swung higher than Haman!" He concluded by saying that no Democrat from Georgia, on the floor, would submit to the inauguration of a Black Republican President. A vote for Speaker was then had, standing for Sherman, 110; Bocock, 35; Gilmer, 22; scattering, 9; necessary 101 choice, 114. Another vote was had, no change, except Mr. Gilmer had 18 and scattering 13. The House then adjourned.

EXECUTION OF GREEN AND COPELAND. CHARLESTOWN, Dec. 16, 1859. Shields Green and John Copeland have just paid the forfeit of their lives. The crowd in the town is very great, and the execution was witnessed by sixteen hundred people. At 9 o'clock the field was scoured by the troops, and at 10:30 the procession made its appearance. It arrived at the scaffold at 11:03.

The prisoners were in a cart, in which were also the Sheriff and jailor. They mounted the scaffold with a firm step. The prisoner had the caps placed over their heads by the Sheriff, and after appropriate prayer by the Rev. Mr. North of the Presbyterian Church, they were launched into eternity. Before the rope was cut, Green was heard to utter a fervent prayer, but Copeland was not heard to pray.

Green's neck was broken, and he died without a struggle. Copeland writhed in violent contortions for several minutes. They fell at eleven minutes after eleven.

Three ministers stood upon the scaffold—Messrs. Waugh, Northard, and Leitch—to whom the prisoners bade farewell, and said they hoped to meet them in Heaven. The bodies will be placed in the jail for interment to-morrow.

On the receipt of the news of Cook and Coppie's attempted escape, Gov. Wise telegraphed to Gen. Taliferro to take possession of the jail, which was accordingly done.

ATTEMPTED ESCAPE OF COOK AND COPPICK. BALTIMORE, Dec. 16, 1859. A special dispatch from Charlestown to The American, says that Cook and Coppie attempted to escape last evening. They had cut through the wall of the jail, and partially succeeded, when they were fired on by the sentinels. They were afterward heavily ironed.

A MILITARY CENTENARIAN.—It would be necessary to go back to the Biblical times to find the trace of a longevity so extraordinary as that of Capt. Alexander-Victor-Narcissus Viroux of Belgium, who has just been put on the pension list by a royal command of the 10th September, 1859. What makes it more wonderful is that Mr. Viroux, born at Chimay, Nov. 9, 1769, and who consequently attained the age of one hundred and fifty years the ninth of last month, took the strange fancy of entering the service the 16th of October, 1830. But the independence of his country called him, and in spite of his one hundred and twenty-one years, he did not hesitate to fly to her defence. The military state pleased him, as he felt young and vigorous, he remained in its service, and attained the rank of captain. It is only in the last few days that he felt the desire of retiring to the place wherein he first saw the light of day.

Mrs. Brown, wife of John Brown, is said to be quite ill, from over excitement, consequent upon the ordeal of taking the remains of her husband to North Elba.

LOCAL ITEMS.

ARTESIAN WELLS. Among the most useful of modern improvements, is that of Artesian Wells. Their advantage consists not only in economy, but in the quality of water procured, as by this invention wells can be sunk to any depth required, passing by the less desirable qualities to that required for artificial or domestic purposes.

The effect of water upon health has long been an acknowledged fact. More especially has this been apparent in the case of Summer complaints—as often a relief of particular kind of water is traced by these diseases. That water which is soft has not only been found to be the most conducive to health; and a change from soft to very hard water has sometimes been known to produce disease, and even death, in families. A peculiarity in the fresh water of Newport is, that while, that procured on the low lands near the salt water and near the surface is soft and pleasant to the taste, that on the high land is very hard and unpalatable, and that from constant use one becomes accustomed to it.

It is in the power of every householder in Newport, in whatever locality they may reside, to have at hand water not only pure and healthy, but available for domestic purposes as rain water, and this at a very trifling expense, by means of artesian wells, which are sunk past the various strata of earth and minerals influencing the quality of water, till that is produced which is required.

Two of these wells have recently been sunk in Newport—one by Mr. Hill, on Thames Street, and another on Long Wharf, by Mr. John Mahoney, in both of which instances an abundant supply of pure and soft quality of water has been procured.

Mr. D. T. Morse, whose advertisement will be found in our columns, is in Newport for the purpose of sinking wells of this description, and will be pleased to contract with parties who desire his services. His stay here is short, and such had better make application to him at once, as he will undertake jobs at a much less expense while here, than if he came down on purpose. He is well acquainted with his business in all its parts, and thoroughly posted in the geological construction of the earth beneath us.

HUNG AT LAST.—An ambulatory picture of Governor Wise of Virginia, is hanging in the show case of Fowler's Picture Room, 144 Thames Street. It was taken by Fowler in Virginia, from the original, in 1855.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—An adjourned meeting of the Newport City Temperance Society will be held this evening at 7 o'clock, in the vestry of the Marlborough Street Church.

of Skeanadoah, "the white man's friend." He was born about the year 1706. In his youth and early manhood, he was very brave and intemperate. In 1755, while attending upon a treaty in Albany he became excessively drunk, and in the morning found himself surrounded by all his ornaments and clothing, his pride revolting at his self-degradation, he resolved never to drink "fire water" again—a resolution which he kept to the end of his life. In appearance he was noble, dignified and commanding, being in height much over six feet and the tallest Indian in his nation. He possessed a powerful frame, for at the age of 85 he was a full match for any of his tribe either in a race, or in a power of endurance, his strength, or speed on foot. But it was chiefly to his eloquence and his mental powers that he owed his reputation and influence. In his early years he was one of the noblest counsellors among the North American tribes: he possessed a vigorous mind and was also sagacious, active and persevering. As an enemy he was terrible, as a friend and ally he was mild and gentle. He was the most faithful to his engagements. His vigilance once saved from massacre the inhabitants of the little village of German Flats, and in the Revolutionary War his influence induced the Onondaga to take up arms in favor of the Americans. Soon after Mr. Kirkland established his mission at Onondaga, SKEANADOAH embraced the doctrines of the Gospel, and for the rest of his life lived a consistent Christian. He often repeated with pride that he was the child of his old teacher and spiritual father, that he might "go up with him at the great resurrection." Although he could speak but little English, and in his extreme old age was entirely blind, yet many sought his company. In conversation he was highly decorous, evincing constant care not to give pain by any remark or reply. Upon one occasion he was visited by a party of young ladies who found him at his house reclining upon his couch. He was then blind, and was introduced by Miss Kirkland, who was one of the party. SKEANADOAH asked, "are these ladies married?" Upon being answered in the negative he responded, "It is well, for there are many bad men!" To a friend who called upon him a short time before his decease, he thus expressed himself by an interpreter: "I am an aged hemlock; the winds of an hundred winters have whistled through my branches. I am dead at the top. The generation which I belong to has passed away and left me; why I live the Great Spirit only knows; pray to me, for I may have patience to wait for my appointed time to die." An eloquence and beauty of sentiment which have been admired by millions in many lands, and which have been seldom equalled by the most eloquent or best of ancient or modern times.

After listening to prayers read at his bedside by his great-granddaughter, SKEANADOAH died on the 11th day of March 1816, aged about 110 years! Agreeably to a promise made by the family of Mr. Kirkland his remains were brought to Clinton and buried by the side of his spiritual father Mr. Kirkland a short distance south of the road leading up to the College. A handsome monument stands in the College burying ground with the following inscription:

SKEANADOAH. "This Monument is erected by the Northern Missionary Society in testimony of respect for the memory of SKEANADOAH, who died in the peace and hope of the Gospel on the 11th day of March, 1816. Wise, eloquent and brave, he long swayed the councils of his Tribe, whose confidence and affection he so eminently enjoyed. In the War of the Revolution he espoused the cause of the Colonies, and ever afterwards remained a firm friend to the United States. Under the ministry of the Rev. Mr. Kirkland he embraced the doctrine of the Gospel; and having exhibited their power in a long life adorned by every Christian virtue, he fell asleep in Jesus at the advanced age of over 110 years." ### FOUSEL'S PABULUM VITAE.

THE GREAT FRENCH REMEDY. It possesses extraordinary properties for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and all PULMONARY DISEASES.

This celebrated specific is now universally acknowledged to be the most superior to all other preparations for the cure of Pulmonary Disease, both from its innocent nature and its most astonishing curative properties; it being the only remedy known that will arrest the development of Tubercles in the Lungs, or restore the vital functions of the pulmonary organs to their normal condition. Its invaluable properties have obtained for it the highest recommendations and praise from some of the most eminent physicians and chemists in the country; while the best and most authentic proofs of its efficacy are afforded by the numerous testimonials of the great efficacy in conquering disease, which are constantly received from our most respectable citizens. Invalids in all stages of pulmonary disease should not fail to give it a trial, as it can be administered to the most delicate and feeble with perfect safety and certain relief; and we herewith insert a few testimonials for their encouragement, selected from hundreds of ### Certificate of Dr. A. A. HAYES, in reference to the unequalled virtues of this great discovery.

This preparation, by chemical analysis, was proved to be free from opium or any of its compounds; nor were any of the alkaloids present. It does not contain any mercurial or mineral substance, but consists wholly of volatile, diffusible agents, which afford vapors freely at a moderate temperature. Most of the diseases present are efficiently used in alleviating pulmonary disease, but in some cases by which they are combined in new and original, and adapts the compound to inhalation, or other modes of administration.

Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M. D., State Assayer.

18 Boylston Street, Boston, Dec. 19, 1857.

Testimonial from the Assistant Superintendent of Health:

Boston, Oct. 6, 1859.

Sir—It affords me great pleasure in recommending to those troubled with Pulmonary Complaints the use of Fousel's Pabulum Vitae; and my own experience has shown that for Coughs and Colds it possesses qualities of great merit, and I would most cheerfully recommend its use to those troubled with the above complaints, so common to our climate.

Respectfully yours,

DANIEL B. CURTIS.

To L. LAFORET, Esq., 12 City Hall.

Dear Sir—This may certify that I have used Fousel's Pabulum Vitae, and I consider it the best article that I have ever used for pulmonary complaints. My wife has used it for severe colds, and its effect was magical; and I have no objection to your referring in any way to me that you deem expedient.

I have given the above named a fair trial, and with confidence advise all that are afflicted with colds or pulmonary complaints to try it.
